BOMBERS FROM SOLOMONS IN FIERCE ATTACK

Three of Four Destroyers Carrying Supplies Hit; One, Perhaps Two, Sent Down.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29—The navy announced today that American planes operating out of the southwest Pacific Solomon islands had attacked a squadron of four Japanese destroyers, sinking one large one, probably sinking another and leaving a third badly damaged and burning.

The destroyers, the navy said, appeared to be loaded with supplies and equipment for Japanese forces on Santa Isabel island, northwest of Florida island and Guadalcanal which are occupied by American marines. The navy communique, number 114 based on reports received up to noon today said of the Southwest Pacific:

"1. During the late afternoon of Aug. 27 (Washington date) a United States aircraft patrol, based on Guadalcanal island in the Solomon archipelago, sighted one small and three large Japanese destroyers. These ships appeared to be loaded with supplies and equipment for isolated Japanese patrols believed to be operating near the eastern end of Santa Isabel island.

"2. After reporting contact, the patrol planes attacked and secured one hit on the small destroyer.

"3. A striking force of 'Flying Fortress' bombers from Guadalcanal answered the contact report by proceeding to attack the three large destroyers. The attack resulted in the following damage to the enemy:

"(A) One large destroyer sunk as the result of a heavy explosion following bomb hits.

"(B) A second large destroyer severely damaged and probably sunk.

"4. During this attack the striking force observed that the destroyer previously hit by the patrol planes was crippled and burning.

"5. No further action has been reported in this area."

Fighting More Intense on Milne Bay Today

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 29—Fighting appeared to be growing more intensely today along the muddy shores of Milne bay as veteran Australian troops battled with effective United States air support against Japanese forces attempting to consolidate a beachhead on the southeastern tip of New Guinea.

A communique from General MacArthur's headquarters said the Allied forces were in close contact with the recently landed Japanese and described the fighting as "fierce."

A small number of United States service troops were reported in the battle area.

Allied medium bombers, piloted by Australians and escorted by American fighters, were raking Japanese beachheads established by the enemy and the communique added that "numerous fires were started."

Met By Australians

The Japanese apparently filtered ashore the forbidding jungle coast and were engaged by the Australians.

One man said the weather, which had slowed the early progress of the land and air battle, was "better now," but the troops were fighting in heavy mud. Another was proceeding several miles from the head of Milne

THREE APPOINTED TO POLICE POSTS

New Marion Patrolmen To Take Over Duties Sept. 1.

Three new patrolmen, who will assume their duties with the Marion police department Sept. 1, were appointed today by Safety-Service Director Clyde C. Caldwell.

They are: Carey LeRoy Kannel, 35, of 117 Harcourt place, Virgil H. Campbell, 28, of 317 Duluth avenue and Floyd Wilson 31, of 825 Uncapher avenue.

Kannel, employed in the pattern storage department of the Marion Steam Shovel company, is married and has one child. He has been an employe of the firm for the last eight years.

Campbell is a native of Mt Gilead and has been a resident of Marion about two years. He is married and has been employed as fountain manager at the Henney & Cooper drugstore.

Wilson has been employed for the last 13 years by the Pollak Steel company. He is married.

Although Director Caldwell originally intended to make four appointments only three were made because of the withdrawal of one of the six candidates certified as eligible by the city's civil service commission. He is LeRoy I. Parish of 490 East Farming street, who declined to accept an appointment.

Director Caldwell will ask the civil service commission for an additional certification of three candidates from which he will make the fourth appointment, he reported.

MOST OF LOST CASH AT BUCYRUS FOUND

Youth Accused of Using Part of $10,000.

Special to The Star

Bucyrus, Aug 29—Police today continued their investigation of the loss of a consignment of $10,000 in currency, most of which has been recovered, and continued to hold a 22-year-old Bucyrus youth for further questioning.

The package of money was lost Wednesday morning by a bank messenger enroute from the postoffice to the Bucyrus Farmers & Citizens bank. The youth in custody admitted finding the money, appropriating some of it to his own use and hiding the remainder, police reported.

In an effort to allay suspicion he scattered about a dozen $20 bills around the downtown Bucyrus streets, he told police. Individuals turned in four of the bills and three others were recovered by police. All but approximately $200 has been found.

When the youth feared he was suspected he took the bulk of the money out of hiding and tossed it away in an alley, where it was found by a delivery truck driver and turned over to authorities. The youth, held in jail since Thursday afternoon, had been scheduled to leave yesterday with a group of Crawford county inductees to enter military service.

RAF STRIKES ANOTHER BLOW AT NAZI CITIES

Huge Force Flies Deep Into Germany To Bomb Nuernberg and Saarbruecken.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 29—The RAF struck its second smashing blow in two nights at the Nazi war factory last night with an assault by a "large force" of bombers—perhaps several hundred—at the ancient cities of Nuernberg and Saarbruecken, both highly important military targets.

The RAF bombers flew nearly 500 miles to reach Nuernberg deep in southern Germany, once a peaceful old city and now a center of Nazi war production. Saarbruecken, on the French border and only about 35 miles from Metz, is a rich coal and iron-producing center.

An air ministry communique said 30 bombers failed to return from the mission. One the basis of average five per cent losses on similar large-scale raids in the past, this would put the number of participating planes at 600.

The assault was the third this week against German industrial centers. On Thursday night a force of approximately the same strength smashed at the former Polish port of Gdynia, only a few miles west of Danzig on the Baltic sea, and at Kassel, a locomotive-building center.

In addition to the massive RAF assaults, the Germans have suffered under daylight precision raids in occupied territories by flying fortresses of the United States air forces.

Yesterday the fortresses raided Meaulte, an important airplane center in northern France and the occupied Dutch port of Rotterdam.

Eight persons were killed in one town in northeastern England.

Apparently roused by this round-the-clock schedule, the Germans struck back last night, dropping explosive and incendiary bombs in northeast and eastern England, mostly in coastal areas.

Bombs were dropped during daylight today on a west England town.

The Berlin radio's first report on last night's RAF raid said only that damage had been caused in several towns in southern and southwestern Germany. The Germans estimated the attacking force at from 230 to 250 planes and said 36 planes had been shot down.

PARENTS ORDERED TO PROVIDE FOR FAMILY

Judge Takes Action in Behalf of Couple's 5 Children.

A Marion family that includes five children who have been living at the Marion county juvenile detention home for a month faced a showdown order from Juvenile Judge Oscar Gast today.

The mother was reported away on a vacation and the father said he couldn't take care of them and look after his work, too. That situation resulted in the court taking the children to the detention home a month ago. The mother apparently hasn't returned and the father has done nothing to provide a home, officials were told, so the father was ordered into court through the county humane society. He was ordered to pay $10 toward the support of the children and to get his wife back in Marion to provide a home for the children.

Gala Welcome Dance For Soldiers Called Success

250 Service Men and Hundreds of Others Join in Event; Sponsors Cheered by Soldiers.

By EDNA S. DUTTON

The 2nd Battalion of the 333rd Engineers Regiment which arrived here early this week late assigned army duties and stepped out to meet Marion socially last night at a welcoming dance given at the Rolarena. On hand to welcome the service men were scores of young women from sororities, clubs and other organizations, the sponsors, dozen of women from the canteen who acted as hostesses, Bob McMahon and his orchestra, and A. E. Mallory, manager, and Miss Bertha Major, assistant manager of the Rolarena.

The affair, the first of its kind in Marion's history, was a super success, and if there is doubt in any one's mind let them ask the approximately 250 service men, the several hundred young women, or the hostesses. Tags presented the young women upon their arrival served as introductions and everybody entered wholeheartedly into the entertainment of the evening.

Plenty of Refreshments

Cash was out when it came to refreshments for the service men and their partners. When the hostesses, wearing their canteen uniforms or arm bands were not rounding up dance partners for the more shy service men or young women they were busy making the rounds of the hall carrying huge trays of sandwiches, toting soft drinks or urging the dancers to go to the sandwich bar for refreshments.

Dancing got under way at 8 and for 15 minutes the festivities were put on the air over WMRN, Marion radio station. Later in the evening the service men entertained by gathering around the orchestra platform to sing "We've Been Working on the Railroad" and giving three rousing cheers for the canteen women and sponsors.

If left to a vote of the soldiers and the young women there will be more of this same kind of entertainment, and today Mrs. Eugene B. Willey, head of the canteen service, said she "thought it could be arranged."

A number of officers who paid courtesy visits to the dance ex-

SOVIET HALTS GERMANS ON TWO FRONTS

But Reinforced Nazis Drive Nearer Stalingrad in One Sector Today.

MOSCOW, Aug. 29 — Soviet troops have hurled back German attacks both above and below Stalingrad by vigorous counter-attacks but enemy tanks and infantry are wedged deeply into the city's defenses in another sector and the Nazi command has moved two fresh divisions into action, the Russians said today.

Dead men cold in the greyish green of Adolf Hitler's legions were reported piled high on the sandy steppes before Soviet trenches and the government newspaper Izvestia described prisoners as hungry and almost exhausted.

Red Star said the Germans were having difficulty supplying their tanks with fuel. At one place, along the Don front, 700 tanks were reported halted because of a gasoline famine and Russian bombers destroyed many of them.

Airdrome Captured

(The British radio said the Russians in their great counter-attack on the central front had captured the Rzhev airdrome and cut an important road linking German positions. Fighting in Rzhev was said to be proceeding from house to house.)

Nevertheless, a major defense crisis was apparent.

A Nazi tank division and one more infantry division maneuvered into position after a forced march from the Don bend bridgeheads and aerial transports, plying the skies with fighters and Stukas, brought up hundreds of other Germans.

Some of these dropped as parachutists behind the Russian lines. Automatic gunners duelled in the areas between fortified positions. Smoke spiraled up from bombed areas of Stalingrad, sprawled on the west bank of the Volga.

The government declared 2,800 Germans, Rumanians and Italians dead in a vain attempt to hold one wedge under Russian counter-attacks northwest of the city.

Red army men were declared bearing up under mass bombings and their sharp flanking blows southwest of Stalingrad were reported to have put the Germans on the defensive.

Sector Not Identified

The sector of the deep German penetration was not identified, but the implication was that it was west of the town. The midday communique said that "in this engagement also the Germans suffered heavy losses in men and equipment."

Russian forces were reported to have struck heavily at axis columns driving into the Caucasus and recaptured 13 additional villages during increased assaults upon German fortifications in the upper Volga bog lands near Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow.

Soviet companies still hold the northern section of Rzhev, a Pravda dispatch said, and are striking at the Germans behind plane-laid smoke screens.

The Red navy and supporting warplanes were credited with the destruction of four more axis vessels, a submarine in the Black sea, a transport in the Baltic and two transports totaling 12,000 tons in the Barents sea.

Local battles were fought on the Briansk and Leningrad fronts. At Briansk a Russian battalion captured a railway station.

In the Leningrad sector, the Germans tried in vain to recapture a position recently gained by the Russians.

Concrete Flows in Steady Stream at Big "Batch Plant" On War Factory Site

22 Trucks Take on Load in 65 Seconds, Haul Concrete To All Parts of Construction Project.

Concrete flows in a steady stream from a "batch plant" on the Scioto Ordinance Plant site where the Hunkin-Conkey Construction Co. is fabricating buildings from concrete, lumber and asbestos sheathing.

The volume of concrete work on the war plant construction project is hard for a layman to comprehend, for concrete work goes into virtually all of the hundreds of buildings under construction.

Most of the buildings have concrete floors and curbs that form the bottom few inches of the walls. Some of the structures have concrete walls. Concrete also is used for sidewalks, posts and a variety of other purposes.

Setting up facilities to handle the big-scale handling of concrete, the company built a high concrete mixing plant or "batch" plant. A system of large conveyors keeps carrying the needed materials to the top of the mixing building. High off the ground a man stands on an enclosed platform with a series of levers and some complicated looking weighing devices in front of him.

When one of the company's fleet of 22 concrete trucks, which mix the concrete while they're on the way to deliver it, pulls under the tower, the batch plant worker starts pulling the levers and watching the scales. In 65 seconds he can load the truck with two or three cubic yards of concrete and send it on its way. The three ingredients, concrete, sand, crushed stone and water in that length of time.

Big conveyors bring the stone and sand from huge stock piles nearby. These stock piles contain huge quantities of sand and stone, their size varying from time to time as the work progresses. Other workers dump cement into another conveyor at the bottom of the mixing plant and it, too is carried to the top to be fed into trucks as the batch plant operator pulls the levers.

High Volume Production.

On some days the volume of concrete work isn't heavy, but when a rush period comes along the plant is set up to handle it. Over one four-hour period the plant turned out 104 cubic yards of concrete an hour, a volume seldom handled in building construction work.

As each truck leaves the batch plant, slips are made out to show the amount of the load and where it's to go. This also provides accurate records of the amount of work done each day.

The trucks may be headed for any part of the plant area where construction work is going on. Floors of large buildings keep the trucks hustling, pouring sheets of concrete over big areas.

Because the earth is unusually firm on the plant area, after the top soil has been scraped away, the construction job has been somewhat simplified. After the loose soil has been removed, an 18-inch layer of crushed stone is leveled over the floor area and rolled. Then comes the concrete, forming a floor of what workers call "floating slab" construction. The thickness of the floors depend upon the use for which the building is intended.

Careful Tests Made.

The concrete is not mixed in haphazard fashion. A sample of each batch is sent to the testing laboratory maintained on the grounds in the Holabird & Root building, and samples of the stone and sand are frequently sent to a Cincinnati testing laboratory. The benefit of many years of experience in construction work plus actual tests on samples of the

SUIT STARTED HERE TO REOPEN ESTATE

Fraud Alleged In Bucyrus Woman's Petition.

Mrs. Anna M. Hatch of Bucyrus yesterday filed a petition in Marion county probate court asking that her husband's estate be reopened as the first step in her court fight to obtain approximately $75,000 allegedly due her on some stock her husband, the late Charles A. Hatch owned.

Mrs. Hatch declares her husband died in Marion in 1925 and the estate included 406 shares of stock, mostly in the Equity Investment Co. of Columbus with a few shares in the Capitol Loan Co. of Columbus. She charges that Frank B. Hill and L. K. Osborne of Columbus, executive officers and directors of the two companies, fraudulently represented the value of the stock at $1,700, and that, acting on their representations, she sold the stock to Hill at that figure.

She declares that last year she discovered the stock was worth in excess of $75,000. Alleging that Hill and Osborne conspired to defraud her of the difference between $1,700 and the true value of the stock, she asks for an accounting from them, including any profit the stock may have yielded since 1925. The Columbus law firm of Sandles, Elliott and Ashbaugh and Bernard Moloney of Marion represent Mrs. Hatch.

CHINESE OPEN NEW DRIVE NEAR CANTON

Vigorous Offensive Launched 40 Miles from City.

By The Associated Press

CHUNGKING, Aug. 29—The Chinese have launched a vigorous new offensive against the Japanese 40 miles north of Canton to match the attacks farther north which have brought recapture of Chuhsien and Lishui, sites of the two biggest air fields in eastern China, the central news agency reported tonight.

The offensive began Thursday along the Canton-Hankow railway, the dispatch reported, with Chinese troops crossing a stream 40 miles north of Japanese-occupied Canton, capturing the town of Pakong and driving the Japanese southward.

Several other points since have been taken in quick succession, including Kutungshan, Kweitouling, and Nangchanngau, and the Japanese still are retreating, with the Chinese in hot pursuit, the agency said.

Meanwhile, the Chinese in Chekiang province to the north reinforced their hold on the newly recaptured Chuhsien airfield from which United Nations planes may one day bomb Japan.

The Chinese high command confirmed earlier press reports of the recapture of Chuhsien, Lishui and surrounding points from the Japanese.

The Bread of Life

A SERMONETTE

By REV. GARRISON ROEBUCK

Pastor of First United Brethren Church

Text: Mat. 6:31, 32.—"Therefore take no thought saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, wherewithal shall we be clothed? (For after all these things do the Gentiles seek.) for your Heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things."

MAN is a soul, he has a body. This temple in which we live off times hungers and thirsts after that which is material. It desires and needs food and water, the food of which our bodies grow and water for the tissues of the body.

Likewise the souls of most people also hungers and thirsts.

In Ps. 42:1, 2, we read: "As the heart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God. My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God: when shall I come and appear before God?" Jesus urged his children to eat of that bread and drink of that water which satisfies. That which is spiritual cannot be satisfied by that which is material. The rich fool, we read about in the 12th chapter of Luke's gospel, made the mistake of thinking all his needs would be met in the abundant harvest with which he had been blessed. He said "Soul take thine ease; thou hast much goods laid up for many years." That night his soul was required of him and he passed on into the land where redemption can not be obtained by such things as silver or gold or houses and lands.

The life is more than meat and the body more than raiment. There is a bread, however, that has come down from heaven in the person of Jesus Christ and whosoever partakes of this bread shall hunger no more. There is a fountain of water forever flowing and if we drink from it, it shall be in us a well of water springing up into everlasting life.

Of course we must give some thought as to what we shall eat and what we shall wear but to attend to them exclusively and think little or nothing of your spiritual interest is to care more for the temple than the one that lives in the temple. I believe it was St. Augustine who said, "Thout hast made us for Thyself O God, and our souls are restless until they rest in Thee."

The man who seeks the things of the world only and tries to be satisfied with them, will ultimately have an experience similar to the foolish man who built his house upon the sand: "The rain poured down, the rivers rose, the winds blew and struck against that house and it fell; and great was its downfall.

Have you no rest today? No man can rest on a pillow of thorns. You can not rest with the heartache. Can a man find rest when his soul is disturbed with the horrors of guilt? There is no rest for our souls until we have come to the one who said, "Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and in the end lose his soul or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?"

Public Votes in Favor of Proposal To Cut Red Tape To Aid War Effort

GEORGE GALLUP
American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 29—Mark Twain once said "Everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it." Washington, everybody talks about red tape but nobody does anything about it.

The American public, as this survey reveals today, is ready for something about this problem. Red tape has become an instrument of menace to the efficiency of the war effort.

Nine considered of paramount importance in the present situation, an increasing number of observers in Washington say that red tape requirements often consume the time and energy of virtually all administrators of the war effort. Many observers see the need for streamlining democracy during this period of war emergency. Many regulations which are necessary in time of peace as safeguards to individuals and democracy in time of war often cause more than delay important decisions.

Can We Cut Red Tape?

The question arises as to whether or not democracies can cope effectively with the problem of red tape, and this in turn depends largely upon the public's willingness to forego checks and balances which serve a purpose in peacetime.

One suggestion that has been made is to permit the government in matters of administration to take drastic action during a war emergency. This proposal would allow anyone to appear before an impartial committee which would be empowered to set aside any peacetime laws and regulations which this committee believes to be retarding the war effort.

To test the country's reaction to this proposal the following question was put in a true cross-section survey of the entire population of the country:

"As long as the war lasts, would you favor, or oppose, the appointment of a committee of judges with full power to set aside any peacetime laws and regulations which they felt were slowing up the war effort?"

The results follow:

Favor	58%
Oppose	23
No Opinion	19

While many arguments can be advanced against the adoption of such a far reaching proposal, the results on this question are significant in indicating a willingness on the part of the people to override laws and regulations which impede the effective prosecution of the war.

The results indicate substantial support for any Constitutional amendment, if one is necessary, to enable drastic action in the field of administration during a period of war.

Public Ahead

The public has been consistently ahead of its governmental leaders on virtually every issue pertaining to the war. The results of this study would indicate that even in matters of administration the public may be equally far ahead.

The people's attitude on this question is further evidence that while certain of the nation's leaders are still thinking in terms of tradition, precedent, and regulations, the public is thinking strictly in terms of getting things done.

DEALERS DRAW ON WARTIME EXPERIENCE

Meat Merchandising Methods May Undergo Changes.

WOOSTER — Livestock farmers, packers, and meat retailers may make many changes in their future operations as a result of their wartime experiences, suggests L. E. Kunkle of the Ohio Experiment Station's animal industry department.

Methods of merchandising meat may follow one that the army has developed to advantage. Carcass meats are boned to conserve shipping space, and the boneless parts of beef are packaged according to their use, that is, roasts, stews, and grinding beef. Filled cartons of appropriate size are frozen and can be transported for use at some distant point or stored for future consumption.

Mess officers and their staff can cook the boneless frozen meat quickly and serve it easily without waste. The army is relieved of carcass meat cutting, and more efficient use is made of the bones, tendons, excess fat, and other wastes, which are salvaged at the packing plant.

Beef boning has been practiced by packers for a long time, but army orders of boneless beef now have accelerated the operation. Increased attention to beef boning and the yield of boneless parts will doubtless continue, and ultimately this method of processing will be adapted for civilian consumption.

Discrimination among carcasses that are most suitable for boning will reflect on livestock markets and should encourage the breeding and feed of meat type animals whose carcasses have a higher percentage of the desired lean edible meat.

Mobilization of Youth Urged for War Effort

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Aug. 29—Here to lead an estimated 6,000 delegates in the Veterans of Foreign Wars' 43rd national encampment opening tomorrow, Max Singer of Boston urged speedy mobilization of America's 18-and-19-year-old youths.

"If we give these boys of the age of 18 and 19 at least two years training, we can be more certain a greater number of them will come back home to us when the war is over—not only as survivors, but as men who are able-bodied and physically fit," the 54-year-old VFW commander in chief declared.

She warned, however, that "the permission will only be granted after the most careful consideration of each individual."

bay along the north shore. A narrow beach there fades into the swampy jungle land.

While there was no indication of how the land fighting was going, a recapitulation of allied communiques issued during the past week showed that the Japanese air force has been taking a severe mauling.

According to these bulletins, the Japanese have lost 42 Zero fighters, four heavy bombers and two divebombers since last Sunday, in addition to an unestimated number of planes damaged. Allied losses in the same period have been put officially at only four planes.

Solomon's Battle

In the battle of the Solomon islands, official silence had any new developments since the navy's announcement that two Japanese naval squadrons had withdrawn under attack by United States fliers.

On the China war front, Japan's invasion armies continued their mysterious withdrawal from East China provinces—evidently preparing for new military ventures elsewhere—and the Chinese said the situation in Kiangsi province already had been restored to the position which prevailed before the Japs started their eastward drive.

Chinese dispatches said Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's armies had reinforced their hold on the prize "bomb Japan" airdrome at Chuhsien by occupying the walled city of Chuhsien itself and seizing Changshutan five miles east.

The Chinese said recapture of Chuhsien, in western Chekiang province, gave Gen. Chiang's forces control of nearly 220 miles of the 450-mile Chekiang-Kiangsi railway. Only a few weeks ago the Japanese claimed they had occupied the whole rail line.

There is no one in this world
Who can ever take your place.
Now we must journey on without you
Tho the day be long and sad.
Ever looking unto Jesus
The best friend man ever had
God takes our loved ones from our homes
But never from our hearts,
It is hard for us to say goodbye
But we all must part
Rest, dear Charles, your work is done
And when the day of life is fled,
May we all meet up in heaven
Where no farewell tears are shed.

THE Minute Man has come to life again! He lives once more in each employee who works where this flag flies! One hundred per cent for Victory . . . it's War Bond dollars that are buying the bombs that fall over Tokio and Berlin. As regularly as American-made planes fly over enemy cities, every loyal American invests a part of his weekly earnings in War Bonds: proud to back the men who are fighting for us, and telling the world that as long as that Minute Man flag flies . . . the American flag will continue to wave.

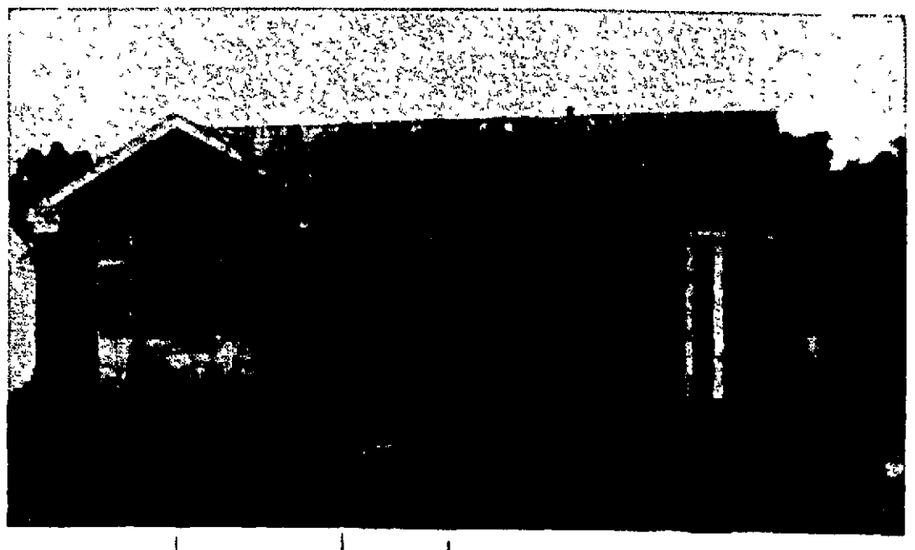
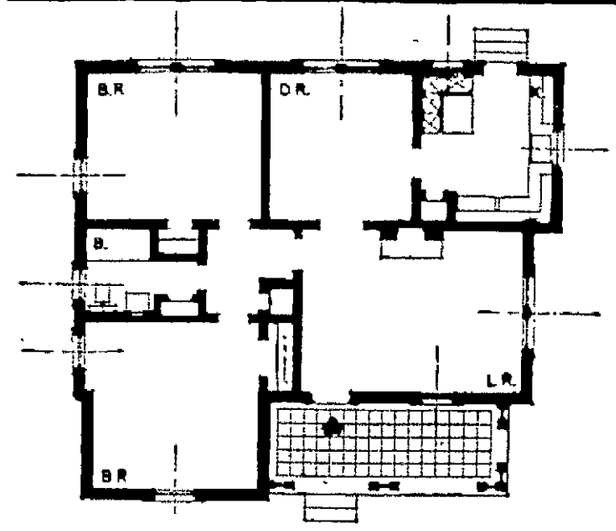
SURFACE PREPARATION

Before painting, new wood surfaces should be sanded smooth and dusted off clean. Drive down any nail heads. Nail holes and cracks should be filled with putty after the first coat has been applied and allowed to dry. Old painted, enameled, and varnished surface in good condition only need sanding with fine sandpaper to cut the gloss of the previous finish and smooth down the surface. Dust off clean before painting. In repainting old surfaces, one coat is usually sufficient when the same color is being used. When covering a dark color with a light color, two coats may be found necessary.

Two Kentucky men have invented shelves to hold large utensils that can be swung out from beneath the seat of a kitchen chair.

Convenience Emphasized In This Home





FLOOR PLANS

This attractive brick veneer house offers a high degree of convenience and livability because of the compact way in which it was planned. It should be noted that the kitchen is well removed from the bedrooms, and that there is no direct connection between the living room and the former. This treatment is regarded as excellent, since it removes the possibility of cooking odors seeping into these rooms.

Building Quiz

Q.: Last year I bought some gladiolus bulbs. This year a friend gave me some and I planted them together. The new bulbs bloomed nicely but the others bore small flowers and had rusty spots on their leaves. This year all the bulbs seemed to be affected. Some did not grow, others that I dug up seemed to have a few dried up roots and the new bulbs are growing on top of the old ones. Most of my neighbors are having the same trouble. We should very much like to have you tell us what is the matter and if there is anything we can do for them. Miss M. H., Birnamwood, Wis.

A.: Since I would not attempt to identify the several rather common diseases of gladiolus from a description, I am going to suggest that you check over the description of the various diseases in our agricultural extension service Bulletin No. 76, Control of Garden Insects and Diseases, which may be obtained from any county agricultural agent in Ohio. Some disease can be controlled; others cannot. You will note that the control requires soaking the bulbs in bichloride of mercury before planting in the spring. Next spring we may have to use a patented remedy instead although we are not sure of that as yet. It is a good idea to treat all gladiolus corms each spring as a prevention, as well as a control which also gets any thrips that you may miss in putting your corms away this fall, for three weeks with naphthalene flakes.

Q.: I wish to do a small amount of planting of evergreens or small shrubs in my front yard, without expense of professional landscape gardener. I need to know what evergreens grow best in Ohio. Will you please tell me where I can obtain this literature? Mrs. H. L. J., Kent, Ohio.

A.: Agricultural extension bulletin No. 113, Ornamental Evergreens, will give you rather complete information on the different kinds of evergreens that do well in Ohio, together with their selection and use. You may obtain this from your county agricultural agent. Incidentally, I find that where a person is spending much over $50 for plant materials in landscaping his home grounds, he will usually save the price of the landscape architect's fee by not making many of the mistakes that he would otherwise make. Of course, this is not true with some of the individuals that call themselves landscape architects but who merely are selling nursery stock.

Q.: There is quite a vogue this summer in this section of spreading lawn grass clippings thickly over the garden between and under the plants. Is this a harmful practice though they shrivel very quickly? Mrs. M. B., Grove City, Pa.

A.: The grass expert at our own Agricultural Experiment Station recommend that grass clippings be left on the lawn to maintain organic matter in the soil. It is, therefore, not a good practice to remove them to mulch the vegetable garden. When used as a mulch on the vegetable garden, they should be accompanied by a light application of fertilizer containing nitrogen to feed the bacteria which decompose the grass. Otherwise, the mulch will have a tendency to temporarily stunt the growth of the vegetables.

Neglect of Needed Home Repairs Neither Patriotic Nor Economical

There is no economy in permitting repairs on homes go unneeded. And it most certainly cannot be considered a patriotic gesture on the part of the home owner to neglect to make the repairs necessary to keep his home in livable condition.

It is true that the effort to conserve materials for direct war production has restricted new home construction to that absolutely necessary for the housing of war-industry workers. But that makes it more essential that existing home properties be kept in adequate repair.

By neglecting these repairs it would be a simple thing to find ourselves faced with a serious housing shortage, not only in the war-industry areas but outside of these areas as well.

Results of Neglect

There are thousands of older homes scattered throughout the country that are completely unlivable simply because what at first were only minor repairs were left unattended to.

It is to help preserve home properties that owners are being strongly urged to make the repairs necessary to maintain their home in a sound, livable condition.

For example, cellar walls should be kept in repair, because, if neglected, it is a very simple thing for water and dampness to seep in and rot or undermine the foundation of the house. Leaky roofs and loose shingles should be looked after immediately. If left to further deteriorate, the job of repair will be much greater later on; so will the bill.

WPB Ruling

These are just a very few of the difficulties where trouble can start; there are a hundred others just as important. For your own safety and assurance, don't neglect home repairs.

To help facilitate such work, the war production board has ruled it unnecessary for home owners to apply for specific authorization in making repairs or maintenance work when the materials are available. When replacement parts that are on the critical materials list are needed, a simplified procedure has been worked out by the WPB.

Marion's Double Loss

WITHIN the span of but six hours Thursday night and early Friday morning death took two of Marion's outstanding citizens. It was an occurrence which has few if any precedents in Marion's history, for memory does not recall any similar brief period of time, at least in the last quarter of a century, in which the community suffered a double loss such as that caused by the deaths of Charles H. Isaly and Frank D. Glosser.

There was much in the lives of these two men who figured so prominently in Marion's business and civic affairs which ran virtually parallel. Both achieved notable success in their special lines of business and industry and both worked their way up entirely through their own initiative, energy and ability. Both took an active interest in the most worthwhile community activities and organizations and contributed much to Marion's welfare and progress.

Their success in personal enterprise was primarily the result of thorough knowledge of their chosen fields. Mr. Isaly was one of the country's recognized leaders and authorities in the dairy industry and its various branches and Mr. Glosser likewise was an expert in factory management and operation. The knowledge and ability that both possessed came from training and experience dating back to their youth, a foundation which provides one of the most dependable assurances of success.

No business development centering in Marion has been more remarkable than the expansion of the Isaly company's operations under Charles H. Isaly's direction and management. The story is one which fits well into the record of this country's almost countless business successes made possible only through the functioning of our system of democratic rule, granting to all people the rights of initiative and achievement.

It is gratifying to know that the country's system of government made successful careers possible for these two men and at the same time we get especial satisfaction from the realization that they found in Marion conditions and opportunities typical of this American democracy.

Pay-As-You-Earn Taxes

THE straight pay-as-you-earn tax proposal, defeated in the senate finance committee, had the backing of most of the little people who pay their share of the expense of government but the financial experts said it wouldn't work.

Instead, the senate probably will approve a plan to withhold 5 per cent of earnings starting Jan. 1, same to apply on income taxes due in March, 1944.

The defeated Ruml plan would have cancelled all taxes according between the last payment and the date the new plan started and would make it a pay as you earn arrangement. The one the senate favors means that the wage earner will be hit twice next year for he will be paying his 1942 taxes on the old plan and putting away credits for his 1943 taxes under the new.

Collection at the source is the surest and most painless way of getting taxes. Money which never comes into the worker's pocket is not missed so much as that which he had awhile and then surrenders. It also solves the problem of the worker who earns good money for a year, spends all of it, loses his job and then faces income tax payments when he has no income from which to meet them.

Is There a Quorum?

EITHER house in congress can suffer a convenient attack of blindness and lose its ability to count when political expediency dictates and this is a handy trick just before election.

Roll calls are held only when demanded. Consequently a mere handful of senators or representatives can meet and transact the nation's business so long as nobody raises the point that a quorum is not present. At this time of year when many of the members are out campaigning there is a sort of a "gentleman's agreement" to raise the issue as infrequently as possible.

The bill to pay soldiers' dependents immediately was passed when only a scattering of members was in either house. When the senate received the bill to let soldiers cast absent ballots, however, Sen. George suggested that there was not a quorum. Roll call showed he was correct, just as it would have showed the same thing nearly any day for the last several weeks.

It is a situation which makes it possible for minority blocs to exercise influence far beyond their numbers and it is one of the dangerous weaknesses in our government.

Best answer to the situation is that the men paid $10,000 a year to go to Washington should stay there whenever business is to be done. Next best, in event political expediency makes personal matters seem more important that a wartime nation's business, is to make daily roll call mandatory, suspending operations when a quorum is not in attendance. This, at least, would obviate the ever present possibility that a minority bloc may take advantage of the situation to slip over a law that the nation later would regret.

News Behind the News

Three Groups of War Dissenters Among Persons Represented in Mallon's Mail.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 — A discouraging condition in some exceptionally unreasonable American public mind has been presented to me, in reader reaction to my recent effort to clear some confused corners of the anti-war thinking on the part of an anonymous correspondent in Cincinnati.

In my mailbag I found a vociferous minority of people who apparently want to do nothing in this war except argue about whether it is right, to argue about Mr. Roosevelt, the New Deal, the British, the Jews, India, in fact practically everything except the question before the house, namely:

"The war—how to win it!"

Apparently there are three groups of dissenters in this country, as represented in this mail. The first need not bother anyone. There were a few letters from exceptionally enthusiastic persons, like the one who threatened me not only with death but promised further personally to assure me everlasting life in hell.

There is a second group of war dissenters who apparently do not care much about winning it, because they think it was started by the Jews, or by "Morgan, DuPont and John D", or by Mr. Roosevelt, or the British, or practically anyone except the Japs and Nazis.

It is not necessary to argue with people who hold these views. To clear them of their confusion it should only be necessary to point out that no matter who started the war, they themselves are in it, we are all in it.

All In It

The fight is not restricted to those whom they accuse. If they are right, completely right, in all their wildest accusations, the slightest sense of self-preservation will tell them they had better strain every ounce of energy they possess to win, or they will live under the rule of the despised Japs (who promised to make peace in the White House) and Nazis.

The absence of this second group from the war effort might not make any important difference in our conduct of the war, if they were not strengthened indirectly and perhaps unintentionally by a third group of citizens. This third group is the one that worries me.

If I believe my mail, they are earnest Americans, seekers for truth, who did not like either Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policies or domestic policies before Pearl Harbor, whose minds are filled with such recollections as the President's promise not to send our boys to foreign soil, a promise he could not keep. In their disillusionment and confusion, this group is failing to contribute enthusiasm, work, dollars or even scrap metal to the cause.

These are the people who see that the doctrine of the four freedoms has not been conscientiously applied in the past by many of our allies, Britain as well as Russia. Some of them see lax labor discipline in our midst, inefficiency, the big debt, uncertain goals, and they sink into despair. They are the disillusioned idealists.

They think they are logical and dealing in truths. Yes, but only up to the point where they must reach a conclusion as to what they intend to do about their grievances. Their complaints are founded in some justice, so they think only about these complaints, but never do they say what they thing should be done.

No Plan of Action

In all the hundreds of letters reaching me, not a single correspondent in this third group suggested any course of action.

They dare not bring themselves to it.

They dare not face the conclusion implied by their argument, because that would bring them to advocate surrender—surrender of the country to the Japs and Nazis.

They cannot meet the obvious consequences of their own position, and advocate peace, because they know peace today means surrender and national misery for many generations to come.

They just keep on moping about their grievances to an extent where they, as a mass group, are actually promoting the consequence of their position which they dare not face—defeat.

Whether they realize it or not, they are contributing to defeat, both negatively, by doing nothing constructive, and affirmatively, by their influence in thought.

That kind of disillusioned and honest idealism is a doublecross played upon our soldiers, our army and navy and marine corps even by some fathers, mothers and brothers of boys in the service, who do not realize where their thinking is leading them.

They are unwittingly undermining the safety of their own loved ones. Don't forget casualties are always greater on the losing side, and money must be raised by bonds to give our men proper power and protection.

Theirs is not idealism or truth at all, but plain blind unthinking political melancholia. I do not like to call groups of people names unless they choose names for themselves, but these people in this third group, will soon classify themselves as the "white flaggers" of this country, if they do not stop moping about past events and pitch in to win. By their own position, they are already running up their own personal sign of surrender.

The only way out of a war—once you are in it—is to throw everything you have into it and win it. All other considerations must wait. Most of the country knows this, but apparently a few still do not.

A Soldier Finds America

From The Camp Pickett Post.

THE author of this letter is as anonymous as the Unknown Soldier. It was found without signature or other identification on the desk of an officer.

Its significance lies in the fact that it is the spontaneous expression of a common soldier and it voices the spirit of a great, widespread America. It says:

"You probably think you know America, I know I did. I thought I knew her as well as traveling her length and breadth from Key West to Portland could qualify one; as well as being born to the rhythm of Atlantic waves that pounded her coast could insure. I thought that viewing her objectively from abroad and returning to the warmth of her bosom just about constituted the last requisite in understanding her thoroughly.

"I was proud of her. We all are, all were. But one month as 'Private Smith' has more fully taught me the real America than had my 25 years as 'Master' and later, 'Mr. Smith.'

"I just happen to be in the medical department at Camp Pickett, Va., but that is immaterial. The America I have learned to know is the army through the country. It is Private Jones, the baker from San Francisco, stationed at Pine Camp, N. Y.; Corporal Noonan from New England, stationed at Camp Lee, Va.

"You cannot know the real America 'til you've washed your fatigue uniform in the wash tub next to Private Manders who left Columbia 'Pre-Med' school to join. You have to bunk next to Private Kernan who used to help his father in his Denver machine shop. You see all America together in one barrack. You are lulled to sleep by the snores of a group of lads as congenial and fraternal as a fabulously harmonious family. More likely than not their only common interest at the time of their induction was their spirit—that American spirit of youth that was always there but dormant. I'd like you not only to imagine this spirit. I'd like you to know it as I do. I'd like you to drill under the 105 degree Virginia sun and be able to sing 'Carry Me Back to Old Virginny' with us on the hike back with full packs! I'd like to have you rise with them, as does the sun, and see the last feloring the slow with their bed-making before so much as throwing cold water in their faces! I wish you could join us, at the end of a full day's work and classes, in the battalion recreation building, hear the 8th Bn. colored band play 'St. Louis Blues' and 'Selections from Stephen Foster' 'til tears run down even northern cheeks; play for our 9th Bn. 'till the perspiration stood out on their foreheads; hear the hot auditorium vibrate with the applauded appreciation of Negro Corporal Bouie's 'She's Big, Fat and 44.'

"I'd like you to be here. That is the only way you'll know the real America. I'd like Adolph Shicklegruber to be here. I warrant it would be a lot more depressing to him than the fabulous figures of our tank and airplane production, which undoubtedly are at his disposal. For it is this which will win the war. I've seen miles of equipment and modern war implements that stagger the imagination. Yet it is not this alone, but the young spirit of America that gives me confidence in our future. I can tell you that there's no power on earth that can override their spirit. I'm proud to be a part of it—proud to be Private Smith who bunks and drills alongside of Private Hoffman from Newark."

Daily Bible Thought

If you establish a firm faith in youth your old age will not be barren and distasteful: "Remember now thy creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them."—Eccles. 12:1.

Waves

The navy really went into a Hollywood huddle in picking the title WAVES for its women's auxiliary.

The simple title was, of course, women's naval auxiliary corps, or perhaps with the second and third words reversed. But in these days of alphabet agencies, that came down to WNACs or WANCs. The first was unpronounceable. The second sounded like the bellow of a bullfrog with a Texas twang.

Women's reserve of the naval reserve was also considered and discarded. World war I had proved that "yeomanettes" (which was what women serving with the navy were called in those days) didn't catch on, and besides in the present setup the ratings were to be different.

It was days before someone came up with that "Waves" and the whole navy started breathing easier. They got it by the 'round Robin Hood's barn method of designating them: Women Appointed for Volunteer Emergency Service. Whoever thought that up (the navy won't tell but his name is Lieut. Jack Allen) must have started with "waves" and worked back.

Today and Tomorrow

Ability of United Nations To Stand Together Seen As Big Thing at Stake This Year.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

IN ARGUING about where to assign munitions, where to put our forces, in which of the many theaters of the war we should stand defensively, and in which we should take the offensive, let us remember that not until 1942 did the grand alliance of the United Nations exist. These are real problems, and many of them are extremely difficult to decide. But the reason we have to decide them is that we have great allies. If we did not have great allies, if were were fighting alone in the Pacific against Japan that did not have to worry about China and Russia, and in the Atlantic against a Germany that did not have to worry about Russia and Britain, the problems we now discuss would be trifles as compared with the problems which we should then have to meet.

It is necessary to fix this in mind if we are to deal reasonably and efficiently with the inherent and inevitable difficulties of a war fought by allies. For only by realizing the true perspective of things can men estimate the true size of anything. A cinder in a man's eye can feel as big as a house, and almost every special pleader is likely to have a cinder in his eye.

The military phase of this war for the future of the world began 11 years ago with the Japanese seizure of Manchuria. In those 11 years our enemies have formed their own alliance. They did this around about the year 1935, and ever since that time Germany, Japan and Italy have been partners.

By 1940 they succeeded in smashing all the combinations which were brought together to resist them. In 1932 the Japanese smashed the League of Nations in the Far East. In 1935-'36 Italy, with the help of Germany and Japan and a Laval government in France, smashed the League of Nations in Europe. In 1938 at Munich Hitler smashed the Franco-British-Russian alliance. In 1940 Hitler smashed the Franco-British alliance.

Foes at Peak in 1940

In the summer of 1940 our enemies were at the peak of their power. That was the lowest and darkest moment in the fortunes of free men. For in the summer of 1940 our enemies were united and all the other nations were separated and isolated. Britain stood alone in Europe. China stood alone in Asia.

It was from that lowest point in the condition of the struggle that, thanks to the time won for mankind by the British and the Chinese, the grand alliance of the United Nations began to form. For it was the British resistance which made it impossible for Germany to finish the European war before attacking Russia and then Africa and the Western Hemisphere.

It was the Chinese resistance which made it impossible for Japan to concentrate all her force in the South Pacific and then against the United States.

The British and Chinese resistance in 1940 meant that Russia had allies when Hitler struck in June, 1941. It meant that we had allies when Japan struck less than six months later. Thus by 1942 there had come into being a greater alliance than any of the other alliances which our enemies in the days of their unimpeded advance had been able to destroy. In the eleventh year of the world conflict and at the end of the third year of open warfare in Europe, the hammer blows of our enemies upon the anvil of our friends have forged the great and ultimate alliance which will decide the war.

It was before this alliance was formed that the enemy won his most spectacular success: Hitler knocked out France and seduced France overseas. It has been while this alliance was mobilizing that Japan overran the badly defended empires of the Far East and

Jap Legionnaires

Two California Posts Made Entirely of Enemy Nat... Now Held in Internment Ca...

By DAMON RUNYON

SOME of our citizens may become a bit perturbed with the example of Americanance that I here relate. Others, I suppose, see in it another example of the spirit of ness and justice that makes this the nation the world has ever known.

There are in existence at this time in California two posts of the American Legion composed entirely of Japanese, nearly all in internment camps. The members are, course, veterans of World war I, since they could not belong to the legion. They American-born Japs and consequently American citizens.

All of them got the bonus. Some of receive disability pensions. A few hold American decorations for meritorious service our flag. One post is the Townsend Harris of San Francisco, the other the Commodore Perry post of Los Angeles, the latter named the great American sailor who opened hermit kingdom to the world long years little knowing he was unleashing a devil's that would later be guilty of the most dastardly treachery against his native land.

The Townsend Harris post has about 28 bers, the Commodore Perry post 78, most these now in the evacuation camp at the Anita race track in southern California. they hold regular meetings and meticulously observe all the various forms and ritual the parent organization, and thereby my tale.

THE American Legion would probably to get rid of the Jap posts and in fact California Legionnaires are on record as oring deportation of alien Japanese after war and depriving those born in the United States of citizenship. These suggestions, opinion, will later on be questions of tredous gravity throughout the country. is a great legal problem involved in the of stripping the American-born of citizen and yet it is clear that something must done to forever eliminate the danger large number of suspect peoples in our in time of war.

But getting back to my original story seems that as long as the Jap posts are with the legion regulations, only the most trary action on the part of the legion as a can shake them out of the national organ If the Japs failed to hold meetings and out the legion practices, they could be matically sloughed for cause. However, the brown vets are mighty particular about ing the rules down to the smallest detail.

IN fact, it is said their meetings are perfect as far as the code is concerned is an odd situation, as you must agree finds semi-prisoners in what are enemy alien camps preserving the one of the most highly patriotic American in existence. You can just imagine how a situation would be met in Japan.

Among the legion customs, though not and fast rule, is that of inter-post That is to say, one post will go a-call another, the legionnaires being by nature sociable. I suppose the Japs have been to keep up with this custom since the ment camps were opened. Anyway, it likely they would have found the welcome missing from the stoops of other posts.

As indicated by their recorded attitude California legionnaires, while perhaps ting the probability of loyalty to the States on the part of some Japs, are conopposed to the race as a whole thou tolerance of the Jap posts proves that tempering their opposition with justice.

Pew moves on and a young lad stops him to say that his draft board ordered him inducted even though he was considered a vital industry worker. John goes to the nearest telephone, calls the secretary of the board and has the case held in abeyance for review. That takes it off the boy's mind and it's now another one of the thousand and one worries John has to carry around.

An acetylene welder comes out of a small shed.

"John, I'm gettin' the miseries. Eighteen years on this job and it's getting me. You better bring a youngster in here and let me teach him my job."

"Okay, Harry," says John, and mentally catalogues that one.

It goes on ad infinitum. Sounds like a day wasted, doesn't it? But listen to John G. Pew, Sr., 73, who shows up for work every day early in the morning and is often there at 11 o'clock that night.

"Treat the men right and they'll build the ships I try to treat them right and they in turn treat me right."

That's why son John spends that kind of a day.

If John gets home to dinner that night, he's lucky. He quit his golf club two years ago. There isn't any sense paying dues when you're working seven days a week most of the time.

This doesn't mean that no one else does any work around Sun Ship. It seems they all do, even though Pew senior says he's against too long hours and is trying to work out as much time off as possible for the executive as well as the men. It's just that the Pews feel there's a gigantic job of shipbuilding to be done and they're trying their best to do it. There wasn't any holiday when Memorial Day came around. And a week before July 4, the plant was posted with notices asking all departments to work on Independence Day.

Pew senior has watched these yards mushroom in 25 years, since he gave up the natural gas business in West Virginia and western Pennsylvania. Another branch of the family had been in the oil business and making tankers was a natural outgrowth.

They set up a blue book of rules and every man has to read it. It set forth such penalties as two weeks off without pay for falling asleep on the job, one month off for taking a punch at a worker. This last is important, for shipworkers are rough and ready lads and if one takes another's welding box, look out. There haven't been many infractions of these rules, though the men seem to want to get as much out of a day as possible, and most of them are giving the bookkeeping department a prime headache by volunteering varying percentages of their pay to be deducted for war bonds. Some requests run as high as 25 per cent.

FAMOUS HORSE ON SHOW BILL

Coming To Fair Next Week; Driver Will Be Delaware County Woman.

Mrs. Estella Long, 70, of the White Star farm at Delaware, driving the famous Fine harness horse "Star That Glitters," will be one of the features of the horse show to be staged in connection with the Marion County fair on Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

Mrs. Long is the widow of A. C. Long, who established White Star farm in Delaware in 1890 and is the mother of three sons, Ross Long, Eli Long and Allen Long, all noted horsemen.

Ross Long established the famous Dixiana farm at Lexington, Ky., which is owned by Fisher Brothers of Detroit, and was manager of this farm when he died in 1935. He was ranked as the most famous saddle horse trainer in the United States.

Eli Long, present owner of White Star farm, is known throughout the country for the horses he has raised and trained at White Star farm.

The great chestnut mare "Sensation," winner of the five-gaited championship at the Kentucky State fair and Madison Square Garden show in 1940 and 1941, was raised and trained by Eli Long at the White Star farm.

He has trained and brought out many famous horses, including "Gloria Star," "Top Of The Town," "Manhattan Serenade," "Sunday Swing," and "Born A Star."

Allen Long, the youngest of the three brothers, for several years managed the stables of L. B. Mayer of Hollywood, and now has a private stable of his own.

CHAPTER 16

Shunned By All Men

TYRA stirred in his arms. "Sandy, I . . ."

"What is it, sweet?"

"Nothing. Only—I wish things were different."

"What things? Right now I wouldn't have anything different."

"You don't know . . ."

Reluctantly Sandy released her. "I don't like to let you go, even for a minute. I'm afraid you'll vanish and that awful dream about never seeing you again will come back."

She placed a finger on his lips. "Sh-h. That was a nightmare. It won't come true. But — Sandy — for the sake of good taste and the others—while we're on the trail we'll be just—comrades."

"That's asking a lot—after tonight."

"But there are other reasons why—it is best."

"Still mysterious?" he chided. "All right, if it pleases you. But beware young lady. I might manage to catch you once in a while when the others have their backs turned."

She laughed a little. "I'll have to take care, then!" She turned away. "Good-night, Sandy . . ."

Tyra watched him go, and Sandy could not see how her small fists were clenched at her sides. She stared for a long time at the place where he vanished. She did love him, she did! Yet how could she, when she did not trust him? Or didn't that matter? She knew so little of love, she who had grown up in the wilderness, wandering from place to place with her father. It might be that what seemed like love was only the moon, Or — a silly infatuation.

In the meantime Sandy was plunging blindly along the trail toward camp. He had almost reached the clearing when he saw a figure moving before him, white and ghostly in the light and shadows of the moon - washed bush. It took him a moment to focus his mind upon the wraith, then he realized that it was Helen!

He opened his lips to shout to her, but reconsidered. She must have followed him, knowing that he intended to meet Tyra, wanting to hear what they said to each other. Well, she had seen plenty.

The blood rushed to Sandy's face, partly from embarrassment that there had been a witness to that scene, partly from resentment that Helen had trailed him.

What had she gained? It didn't matter. With a shrug that was more bravado than anything else, Sandy halted to let Helen pass out of sight before he continued. When he reached camp she was already in her tent.

'Still Unbowed'

Two mornings later, just as the red sun rolled up over the green ridge, they left camp.

Sandy had never felt better physically. Even the heavy pack he carried had a buoyancy it never possessed before. He reflected that the delay had proven beneficial to the entire group for now they were more acclimated and therefore better able to face whatever hardships might lie ahead.

They crossed the ridge into another canyon which they followed three days, then they suddenly emerged in a deep, narrow gorge between towering limestone cliffs. Tributary rivers hurled themselves over the precipices in silver plumes that were lost in mist hundreds of feet below. The roar of the cataracts reverberated from cliff to cliff and only by shouting could the group make themselves heard.

They made their camps in the caves along the sides of the gorge. Four days later they found themselves upon a high round hill of limestone. From there Sandy looked out over the roughest country he had ever seen. Colossal natural steps, broken and upended, marched away seemingly without end, to the horizon. Through the field glasses he could see limestone and shists where the vegetation fell away to expose the rock.

"What a place for a prospector!" he uttered.

Tyra, standing at his side, answered, "Yes, isn't it?"

Sandy lowered the glasses. "How in thunder are we ever going to get through that country?"

"It isn't easy," Tyra said.

"How long will it take?"

Tyra pointed to the most distant ridge, miles away. "We must reach that place. With luck we should be there in about five days."

Sandy glanced at her again to see if she was serious. Five days! And, apparently, that wasn't the end.

"There's no shorter route?" he asked, inanely.

"Look around and tell me where," Tyra said.

It took them a week to reach the ridge Tyra had pointed out. They were bruised and battered, stung and bitten in a thousand places, but as Gil expressed it—"Still unbowed."

Last Stretch.

They stood on the brink of another gorge, wilder and more theatrical than the first. It took a day to reach the bottom and another day to climb out. Now they found themselves crossing a series of pine-covered ridges. There was scarcely any game and they delved deeply into their jerked venison and beans. There was no water, either, but they snook the dew from the undergrowth. Each ridge was higher than the last so that Sandy knew they must be reaching a considerable altitude. His speculations proved correct when, late one afternoon, they came out upon a high peak.

Tyra pointed to the east and said quietly: "That is the end of our trail."

Sandy looked—then he forgot to breathe.

It was a plateau, rising high and sheer from country so twisted and broken that it looked like a world dying in agony. A mist-

...ing as characteristic as the ...ckground of a picture.

He said after a moment, "It ...st be The Lost World!"

"But there are people," Tyra said.

Sandy watched up the glasses. The plateau leapt closer. Yes, there were the tall, matted trees beneath which lay that page of history left by the Mayas. Would he find the code which would decipher their writing? Would he discover anything except another city buried in the bush?

Sandy was not a psychic, but in a flash of intuition, he saw himself as the thread of a pattern that had been hammered in an age so forgotten that not even a memory of it remained to modern man. It seemed right that he should be here; right that these others should be with him, even Helen. As from a great distance he heard a voice saying — "You have no choice but to go," and realized that the words belonged to the soothsayer at the fiesta in Cuba.

That last stretch was by far the most difficult. Thousand-foot precipices, gorges that defied passage, slippery rocks where one misstep meant hurtling to death in a roaring river—foot by foot they advanced with painful slowness. And in all that vast landscape there was no sign of human life. No smoke from cook-fires, no palm frond huts huddled in the clearings, no Indians treading the game-trails, no drums echoing among the mountains.

Truly a land shunned by all men.

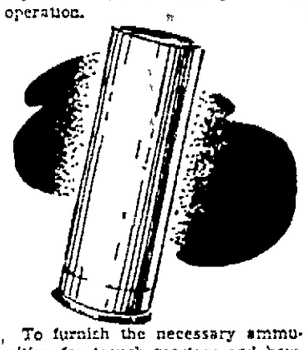
What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Trench mortar shells cost about $19.00. Since a trench mortar fires at the rate of approximately 35 shells per minute, it costs about $665 every minute one of these guns is in operation.



To furnish the necessary ammunition for trench mortars and howitzers and other ordnance, Uncle Sam is calling upon patriotic Americans everywhere to invest at least ten percent of income in War Bonds and Stamps. The least we can do is give our fighting men the ammunition and tools necessary to win the war. Are you doing your share?

that Hitler has been striking so deeply into Russia and the Middle East. This summer we are paying the price we must pay because the alliance which now exists did not exist two years, or even one year ago. Only now, as we are coming to the autumn, is the impact of the new alliance beginning to be felt tentatively on the field of battle.

Therefore, if it is true that what is at stake in 1942 is the ability of the United Nations to withstand the blows which are designed to separate them and then to paralyze them separately. The ultimate objective of our enemies is nothing less than the rupture of the grand alliance, and they will have lost the campaign of 1942 if the alliance survives.

Foe Called Vulnerable

The alliance will survive the campaign of 1942 because on the one hand the enemy has dealt so savagely with the conquered that to submit is infinitely worse than to die, because on the other hand he cannot in 1942 strike finally and decisively into the fastness of Russia, against the citadel of Britain and into the continental base of North America. The enemy cannot get at the heart of our alliance. Because he cannot, there will burn in the souls of all his countless victims the flame of hope fed by the fuels of hate.

The heart of our enemy is vulnerable. We stand now within striking distance of the enemy in Europe, and in Asia his heart is weak though his hands and his long fingers are strong. The ground on which he stands is big. But it is rotten under his feet, rotten with the inexpiable hatreds he has aroused, rotten with his own dread of the consequences, rotten with the guilt that compels him to commit more crimes in order to cover the crimes he has already committed.

Thus in 1942 his conquests are wider than in 1940 but his prospects are worse. For in those two years, which are the turning point in the history of the modern world, has come into being the grand and implacable alliance to which we belong. Henceforth, this alliance will conduct the war and in the end it will win the right to shape the future.

27 SNAKES WITH 1 SHOT

Marion Man Kills Black Snake and 26 Babies.

Twenty-seven snakes with a single shot is the marksmanship record of Charles Whaley of South Main street and he has the pictures to prove it. His unusual record was made last Saturday while hunting ground hogs on the Retterer farm southeast of Marion in company with John L. Jolley of 308 South High street.

Whaley's single shot killed a huge reptile, thought to be a black snake. The shot pierced the snake and revealed a number of unborn snakes within the carcass. He and Mr. Jolley removed the smaller snakes and discovered a total of 26.

The large reptile and 26 smaller Center street barbershop after ones were put on display for a few hours at Mr. Jolley's East which they had a photographer snap a picture of the unusual catch.

NAZIS CLAIM DIEPPE WAS SECOND FRONT

One Operational Order Seized in Commando Raid.

The German high command today ...umed that an allied operation ...ircer seized during the ...ug. 19 commando raid on ... France, showed it was ...ed to be the opening of a ... front" in Europe.

The communique ignored the fact that before and during the raid the British radio advised the French people that the raid was not a real invasion.

The Nazi command said 2,195 ...raiders had been captured at Dieppe and that the British had left more than 400 dead behind them.

German night raiders strewed ...explosives and incendiaries at ...eral points along the northeast English coast—the Nazi radio said they bombed Sunderland—but their attacks bore no comparison to the massive RAF assaults on the continent.

On the Egyptian front, the situation remained tense but static as Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's British imperial armies braced for an expected renewal of the great campaign and sent night patrols to test the enemy's defenses.

"Our patrols were active over the whole front. British G.H.Q. said. "Enemy patrols and working parties were engaged and dispersed."

Allied headquarters said axis forces beat off a British motor-brigade attack at the center of the 35-mile E. Alamein front, 80 miles west of Alexandria, and repulsed another thrust farther south.

In the nearby waters of the Mediterranean, British submarines striking at axis supply lines were credited with sinking a large tanker and a supply ship and registering torpedo hits on three other enemy vessels.

Navy Women's Uniforms May Set New Style Trend

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 — A handful of men, treated to a preview of the natty new uniform of the women's naval reserves, wondered today if its narrow short skirt might not bring back the short-short dresses of the first World war.

One veteran of the last war recalled that it was the ankle-length skirt of the navy's yoeman ettes that first scandalized Washington more than two decades ago and ushered in the abbreviated skirts.

Now the Waves uniform has a skirt that flows 17 inches above ground.

The pockets are important items too. The designers declare they are to prevent handkerchiefs, cigarets, and other things falling to the ground each time a Wave snaps to attention.

The hat is another natty part of the uniform. It is worn at a jaunty angle like the men's overseas cap.

With such short skirts, the masculine viewpoint turns to consideration of the hosiery and speculation as to how the Waves will solve the stocking problem.

Navy regulations do not expressly forbid painted legs but provide that "hose are to be conventional-length, medium-dark taupe in color, plain hole, rayon or other similar material, not sheerer than four-thread or equivalent construction."

One important innovation designed to prevent the Waves from leaving their handbags behind is a strap by which it is fastened from the shoulder.

VESSEL CAPSIZES AFTER FIRE IN HARBOR

Medium Sized Merchant Ship Burns at Philadelphia.

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29 — A medium-size merchant ship tied up at a Delaware river pier burned for almost four hours early today, then capsized from the weight of water sprayed into it by four fire companies and a fireboat.

The flames broke out shortly after 2 a. m. in the bow below deck, burst through and raced toward the stern despite emergency efforts of the captain and crew of 14. In 10 minutes the entire ship was ablaze.

Five crewmen were burned, one was cut and four were treated by smoke. Ten firemen also needed hospital treatment.

Tugs tried to keep the vessel upright but had to flee the flames. Shortly after 5:30 a. m. it rolled over on its side.

Origin of the blaze was undetermined.

Four Kings at Rites for Duke of Kent Today

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 29—Four kings—George VI of England, Haakon VII of Norway, George II of Greece and Peter II of Yugoslavia—and Queen Wilhelmina of Holland attended a simple funeral service for the Duke of Kent at St. George's chapel at Windsor today.

The Duchess of Kent entered with Queen Elizabeth and the Queen Mother Mary, and the former helped the duchess up the steps to the choir stalls. All three wore heavy crepe veils.

The Duchess sobbed throughout the brief rites, and as the coffin was lowered to a purple bier she sank to her knees in prayer.

Queen Elizabeth comforted her, while the dean of Windsor intoned the burial service.

It was the first funeral for a member of the Windsor family to lose his life in active service in this war. The duke, youngest brother of the king, was killed in Scotland in the crash of a plane which had set out for Iceland on a military mission.

Falling Machine Gun Wrecks Japanese Plane

By The Associated Press

MELBOURNE, Aug. 29—A machine gun falling from an American bomber sheared off the propeller of a Japanese Zero plane causing its destruction at Milne bay, a Melbourne Herald War correspondent cabled today.

F. C. Folkard, the writer, said the story was vouched for by Gunnery Sergeant J. P. Papp and others on the bomber.

Papp said the bomber came so close to another plane that he feared the machines would collide. He made a sudden motion to adjust his life preserver, accidently swing his machine gun a wrench. There was no collision, but screws holding the gun broke.

"The gun fell out, I almost following it in my effort to save it," Papp told the correspondent. "Looking down, I was startled to see a Zero, 200 feet below and coming up at us fast to make a belly attack.

"Now this may sound incredible, but that falling gun hit the Zero's propeller, which was knocked to pieces. The Zero kept coming a moment and then dived straight down to the water."

U. S. MUST SHARE MEAT WITH ALLIES

Larger Demand May Bring Meatless Days.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29—Because it is closer to the European battleground than most other sources of supply, the United States may have to share a larger portion of its meat with American armed forces overseas and with Great Britain than previously expected.

This is the implication of a statement by President Roosevelt yesterday that Americans may be asked to observe a meatless day each week. Meatless days would be one way of reducing American consumption to make larger supplies available for movement across the Atlantic.

The United Nations have four major sources of meat supplies—the United States, Argentina, Australia and New Zealand.

If a part of the supplies now being obtained for Great Britain—and American troops stationed there—from Argentina, Australia and New Zealand can be supplied by the United States, a saving in oceanic shipping and possibly ship losses would result.

Mr. Roosevelt said if this country provided greater supplies by observing a meatless day each week, from 20 to 30 fewer ships would be needed to transport meat to overseas forces and to Great Britain from other nations. These ships, he said could be used to transport planes, tanks, ammunition and other war materials to fighting fronts.

Meatless days represent one of several plans considered by the government for cutting consumption. The office of price administration has been directed by the war production board's foods requirements committee to formulate plans for consumer rationing for possible future use.

The foods committee is working on plans for allocating supplies among three categories of demand—the military forces, the United Nations, and American civilians. A third of the total meat supply, the foods committee said may be needed for military and United Nations.

The remaining two-thirds is insufficient food authorities say, to provide Americans with all they would like to have and could buy with their present record volume of buying power.

CHARGES AGAINST ATTORNEY FILED

Committee Named by Judge Young Files Report.

A charge that J. Wilbur Jacoby, Marion attorney, has been convicted of a crime under the federal laws was filed yesterday in common pleas court by the two-member committee named Thursday by Judge Hector S. Young, to "prepare and file written charges, setting forth specifications covering grounds of the complaint."

The committee report states that Mr. Jacoby was convicted on "two counts of an indictment charging the use of the United States mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud, and entering into a conspiracy for that purpose, that no appeal was taken from said conviction, and that said conviction has not been reversed or set aside."

The committee, composed of Howard P. Gaffney and H. Alfred Dunthett, was appointed by Judge Young following the filing of a report by the Marion County Bar association. The report concerned Mr. Jacoby's connection with Forest Glen, Inc. In court papers containing the appointment it was stated that Mr. Jacoby "is probably guilty of misconduct in his profession and office involving moral turpitude."

It is likely that the next step in the case, request for the appointment of a judge or judges from other courts to conduct the hearing, will be announced within several days, court officials indicated.

CONCRETE

concrete used on the job go into the series of precautions taken to make sure the concrete work will serve its intended purpose.

Many of the forms used to pour concrete walls are made of huge slabs of plywood. These are kept oiled to prevent the concrete from sticking. When a truck pulls up to one of these pouring jobs, it empties its load of concrete into a big bucket which is then lifted by a caterpillar crane to the form. A worker controls the flow of concrete into the form while others place a motor-operated vibrating rod down into the newly-poured concrete. This shakes down the concrete into a solid mass eliminating any air pockets.

Experienced Supervisor.

Operation of the concrete batch plant is in charge of Art Schultz, a native of Tiffin, who worked with the Hunkin-Conkey company at the Ravenna ordnance plant before coming to the Scioto plant.

Other phases of the construction work are just as interesting. At one point near huge piles of lumber, a gang of carpenters demonstrate mass production methods in construction work. They assemble big sections of framework, some of them heavily bolted together, a big carry-all truck hauls them out to the place where they're to be used and a crane lifts them into place. Some of the smaller buildings are virtually completed near the lumber stock piles and then transported to the foundations that are waiting for them in other parts of the area.

Some of the buildings are several hundred feet in length.

One phase of the construction work now under way is the building of watchmen's towers. These are of heavy timber framework with an enclosed cupola on top. From these guards can see for miles in every direction. The framework is built "lying down" and hoisted into place when finished.

Carpenters recently finished a group of small sentry buildings for use of patrolmen stationed at the entrances to the grounds. The buildings are only about four feet square, providing the patrolmen with protection against severe weather. These were built at one location and transported to the various places where they are being used.

Of Swedish invention are skis made in two parts that can be carried in a shoulder case about two feet long, the parts being fitted together for use.

Nazi Flag Atop Elbrus Symbol Of Hitler's Goal

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

The Hitlerite claim to have planted the Nazi flag atop the Caucasus range's Mount Elbrus, highest peak in Europe, presents an interesting study in Prussian psychology.

Perhaps one might better describe it as a psychopathic problem, since it has to do with the psychosis which has resulted in the Deutschland-Uber-Alles mentality and the more recent belief in the super-human qualities of the Aryan race.

It should be said in fairness that this mountain-climbing stunt isn't entirely due to the March hare fanaticism which produced that horrid abnormality known as Nazism. It has no military importance, of course, because if it was carried out at all it was by a handful of "mountaineers." Still, it isn't a bad bit of advertising.

The idea of such a feat is (1) to demonstrate that the reich always is on top, (2) to give a display of Nazi prowess and fearlessness, and (3) to create in the other fellow an inferiority complex which has him forever looking up at the Prussian. In some quarters that type of propaganda works.

Only Incidental

Still, the propaganda angle is only an incidental part of the story, and in order to develop our thesis we should take a further look at the Nazi mountain-climbing penchant. Elbrus isn't the first height they have scaled in this war, or before it. They're always climbing — and they're good at it.

One of the first things they did on entering Paris was to mount to the top of the Eiffel tower and fly the swastika. Not satisfied with that, they stuck their flag on Napoleon Bonaparte's grand arc de triomphe.

When the Nazis stormed their way into Greece last year they immediately hot-footed it to the home of the ancient Greek gods on Mount Olympus and there planted Herr Hitler's emblem. The highest point in Athens is the acropolis and naturally the swastika was unfurled there.

And so it goes. Herr Hitler's favorite retreat in his mansion high in the Bavarian alps at Berchtesgaden, and nearby is the home of his crown prince, Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering. That gets 'em as near to heaven as they ever will be unless, as United States Senator Pepper (I believe it was he) has declared, we hang the fuehrer "higher than Haman" after the war.

Only a Symbol

Now the mere fact that a chap likes to climb mountains doesn't mean that he has brain-storms, but the idea of dominating the world as a superior being is a Prussian characteristic. It's the same thing which used to make the Prussian army officer knock ordinary civilians off the sidewalk as he swanked by, and which bred the insufferable arrogance for which the Prussian is notorious.

Nazism is the bedevilled spirit of Prussianism. Hitler—sometimes erroneously called Schickelgruber, because that was the name of paternal ancestors—isn't a Prussian by birth. He is an Austrian, but from his boyhood the Prussians have been his ideals, and it is recorded that as a youngster he used to dream of the time when all Europe would be ruled by such a race.

That dream has persisted until we have his distorted ambition to rule the world and make all other peoples literally the slaves of the Prussians. We see him carrying this out in Europe right now. He must be on top, looking down.

He has made this unholy doctrine an integral part of Nazism, and to my mind this goes far toward explaining the unnatural features of the climbing complex. The scaling of the heights to attract attention helps satisfy an ugly desire.

A Chicago man has invented screws to be used in wood that have points like nails to enable them to be started by tapping with a hammer without boring holes.

ACCIDENT FATAL TO DELAWARE CO. MAN

Injured When at Work in Farm Field.

Special to The Star

DELAWARE, Aug. 29—Oscar Lobdell, 33, died early yesterday at Jane M. Case hospital of injuries suffered while working at the Harry Irwin farm, four miles southeast of Delaware, Thursday afternoon. Lobdell was working alone and details of the accident are not known but it is thought he was injured when a team of horses bolted.

He returned to the farm home in a dazed condition about an hour after leaving the team. He was unable to give a coherent account of what happened. A singletree of the wagon was broken and tracks indicated it had been driven over two shallow gullies.

PAY-AS-YOU-GO TAX PLAN TO BE STUDIED

Senate Committee To Reconsider Measure Before Vote.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29—Chairman George (D-Ga) said today the senate finance committee probably would reassess the Ruml plan for pay-as-you-go collection of individual income taxes before voting on a house-approved provision of the new revenue bill levying 5 per cent on wages, interest and dividends beginning Jan. 1.

Senator Byrd (D-Va) said after a conference with George and Senator Clark (D-Mo) that Beardsley Ruml, chairman of the New York Federal Reserve bank, would be available next week for testimony before the committee if it decides to reconsider two previous votes rejecting his plan.

Ruml recommended erasing 1941 income liabilities and applying payments made this year on the 1942 income, with adjustments at the end of the year if the taxpayer's net receipts were either more or less than his income for 1941. Payments thereafter would be made weekly or monthly on the current year's income.

Byrd told reporters he believed some plan could be worked out to make the collections under the Ruml plan. George said he was sure a majority of the committee wanted to study such a proposal.

He added that despite committee revisions, much dissatisfaction remained with the machinery set up to collect the 5 per cent withholding levy placed in the bill by the house.

German and Italian Clubs Raided by FBI

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29—A score of German and Italian clubs where members assertedly cheered short wave radio reports of axis victories were raided by the federal bureau of investigation last night and early today.

Each club was searched for propaganda, cameras and firearms, said Walter V. McLaughlin of the FBI office here. Booty seized and arrests made were not made public.

The raids were the result of tips from some members of the clubs, he said. These members complained about their colleagues clicking of glasses and shouting "Heil Hitler," following Nazi broadcasts of war successes.

It is illegal for enemy aliens to gather for purposes of hearing short wave broadcasts, the FBI pointed out.

JAPS REPORT U. S. LOSSES

TOKYO (FROM JAPANESE BROADCASTS), Aug. 29 — A Japanese spokesman said today that 43 United States ships had been sunk or damaged in the battle of the Solomon islands, the Tokyo radio reported. Included in this list, the spokesman said, were three large warships, seriously damaged. (These Japanese claims have no support whatever from any other source and, in the face of communiques issued by the U. S. navy department announcing the action, are fantastically exaggerated.)

New York's Cripples, Scenting Series Cash, Drop Crutches for Stretch Drive

Chandler, Hassett Return to Line-Up As New York Blanks Tribe.

BY AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Disheartening as it may be to the Boston Red Sox, the citizens of Brooklyn and the manufacturers of medical supplies, it begins to look as if the New York Yankees will be able to finish the American league pennant race without the aid of an ambulance.

With their injury list crowded much of the time, the Yanks have done little better than break even since the start of the month, wining 15 games and losing 11 for an average of .577.

But the cripples have started shedding their bandages and turning up at their regular posts, a situation that spells trouble for other clubs in the league and particularly the Red Sox, who have won 16 of their last 18 games in a desperate drive to overhaul the Yanks.

Two fugitives from a hospital took their places in the lineup yesterday as the Yankees applied their 17th whitewash job of the year, a 3-0 shutout over the crumbling Cleveland Indians.

Spud Chandler made his first start on the mound since Aug. 10, when he wrenched his back, and demonstrated that he has recovered completely, allowing only seven hits in registering his 14th triumph. Buddy Hassett also returned to his first base post, enabling utility infielder Gerry Priddy to shift to the opposite corner and give Red Rolfe a much needed rest.

Eight Games Ahead

The victory kept the Yankees eight games in front of the Red Sox, who blanked the Chicago White Sox, 4-0, on the four-hit hurling of Joe Dobson.

The Indians play their last Yankee stadium game of the season today, entrusting their hopes to Al Smith, only Indian hurler to beat the Yankees here this year.

And then come three games at Washington and one at Philadelphia, affording Cleveland a welcome opportunity of meeting opposition from the bottom of the league standings.

Yesterday's licking at the hands of the Yankees was Cleveland's fourth defeat in five games of the final eastern tour and left the Tribe a margin of only one and one-half games over the fifth-place Tigers, and the Indians now trail the St. Louis Browns by two and one-half.

Browns Defeat A's

Meanwhile, the St. Louis Browns strengthened their hold on third place by nipping the Philadelphia Athletics 5-4 in ten innings, and the Detroit Tigers moved to within a game and a half of fourth-place Cleveland by beating Washington 10-7 in 14 innings.

In the National league, the Brooklyn Dodgers walloped the Chicago Cubs, 7-1, but watched their lead shrink to five games as the stubborn St. Louis Cardinals took both ends of a double bill from the Philadelphia Phils 7-1 and 7-5.

Claude Passeau went after his 18th pitching victory for the Cubs but wound up with his tenth defeat.

The New York Giants were kept idle by weather at Pittsburgh but their hold on third place was strengthened when the Boston Braves knocked over Bucky Walters and the Cincinnati Reds, 4-2, in a night game.

Snatches of Sports

BY HUGH FULLERTON
Wide World Sports Columnist

NEW YORK, Aug. 29—Max Hill, former AP foreign correspondent who just got home from Tokyo, reports he had a yen to bet on a horse race . . . It seems Japanese race fans are allowed to buy only one ten-yen ticket (worth about $5) on the horse they pick . . . When Max went back for another ticket he was apprehended and tossed into the pokey, and since Hill couldn't talk Japanese and the cop couldn't understand English, Max had quite a time getting out . . . Just goes to show the difference: Here guys who bet $10 on a race usually wants the jockey or the owner jugged . . . Old Honus Wagner is back in circulation after 11 weeks in the hospital because of an eye infection . . . When Notre Dame opens the grid season against Wisconsin, Sept. 26, the Badgers will use the "Notre Dame" system while the Irish will rely on the "T."

Double Steal — Hank Wolfe of the Richmond News Leader relays this incident from a sandlot game for the benefit of all guys who claim you can't steal first base . . . On a hit and run play, the batter failed to swing at the ball. The runner on first broke with the pitch and was almost down to second when he suddenly pulled up and sprinted madly back to first . . . He made it safely, but it wasn't until the inning ended that his teammates learned why he had reversed himself on an apparently successful steal . . . Seems the catcher made a looping toss down to the second baseman and the runner, just catching a glimpse of the ball, figured it was a pop fly.

CINCINNATI ON EDGE OF SECOND DIVISION

Boston and Pittsburgh Are Doubling Up on Redlegs.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Aug. 29 — Boston and Pittsburgh could team up today to drop the slumping Cincinnati Reds into the second division for the first time since early June.

Pittsburgh, in fifth place a game behind the Reds, would have to beat the New York Giants in both ends of a twin-bill, while Manuel Salvo would have to pitch his third straight victory over the Reds against Paul Derringer in Boston's final appearance here.

Only 3,936 paying customers, one of the smallest night game attendance here since Crosley Field introduced lights to the majors, saw the Redlegs lose to Boston last night 4-2.

Bucky Walters didn't allow a Brave to reach first base for five innings but he walked three to start the sixth. Singles by pinch-hitter Max West and Frolan Fernandez drove in three runs. Joe Beggs relieved Walters and Buddy Gremp doubled home the final Boston run.

GALLARNEAU GAINS AS BEARS CLASH WITH ALL-STARS

Hugh Gallarneau (8), right halfback of the Chicago Bears, makes a gain, above, in the first quarter of the Chicagoans' clash with the college All-Stars at Soldier Field, Chicago, before more than 100,000 fans. Coming up from behind is end George Wilson (30) in an attempt to block Henry Stanton (5) of the All-Stars who is trying to stop Gallarneau.

Bears Trounce All-Stars, 21 to 0; Army-Navy Relief Gets $160,000

By DAVE HOFF
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Aug. 29—Coach Bob Zuppke's dream of a glamorous ending to his long career in football evaporated like the mists that all but obscured last night's ninth annual All-Star game in Soldier Field.

His one time pupil, George Halas, and the massive Chicago Bears machine showed the old Illinois master no mercy before a record crowd of 101,100, walloping the Stars 21 to 0. The Bears won last year's game, 37 to 13.

The National Football League champions of 1940 and 1941, despite the departure of 10 star players for the armed forces, still have their Sid Luckman and their Hugh Gallarneau and their other gridiron demons . . . The fact they scored only three touchdowns last night was a tribute to the excellent conditioning of the All-Stars.

Keep Record Clean

The Bears have now participated in four of the nine All-Star contests without suffering a defeat. They were held to a scoreless tie in the 1934 series inaugural.

Those who sat in the upper regions of Soldier Field did not see a single play of the 75 yard drive that netted the Bears their third touchdown in the third period. Fog obscured the playing field from view, but the man with the microphone dutifully reported Luckman completed a 58 yard pass play to Hampton Pool and that Gallarneau galloped over from the eight yard line to score.

The first period Bear touchdown was visible, as Gallarneau went over from the four yard line to climax a 60 yard Bear power drive. The second period touchdown was made on a 23 yard pass from young Bussey to Pool, and all that was observed by all hands, too, Joe Stydahar kicked all three conversion points.

All-Star Thrusts Fail

Minnesota's Bruce Smith, probably the All-Stars most consistent performer, directed two fierce thrusts in the second period that failed for want of a punch runner. Notre Dame's Steve Juzwik drew the night's biggest cheers for a 91 yard sprint in the first period, six yards shy of a touchdown.

The game netted about $160,000 for Army and Navy relief, the biggest such fund raised in any single day sports event since Pearl Harbor.

Dodgers Won Flag Last Dec. 11 When Rickey Sold Mize

By DILLON GRAHAM
Wide World Sports Editor

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—It's a wonder this baseball-nutty Borough of Brooklyn hasn't declared Dec 11 an official holiday. That's the day, Dec. 11, 1941, that the Dodgers — through no fault of their own won the National League championship for '42.

On that coolish day Branch Rickey, of the Cardinals, who has been busy in recent years winning flags for other teams, peddled Large John Mize to the Giants.

Yep, as I see it, those Dodgers won the flag nine months in advance, which sets a record for early clinching of the bunting. Chances are he did no such thing, but it makes a better story to think of L. S. (Loud Speaker) MacPhail, the Brooklyn general manager and general megaphone, smacking his large lips in delight as he heard of the transaction that shunted the mighty Mize east of the muddy ditch known as the Mississippi.

"That done it!" he could have said. "The pennant's ours."

But not even a MacPhail dared brave the frail, fidgity old jedge, K. M. Landis, by snatching the flag right then and there and nailing it onto the mast at Ebbets Field alongside the '41 pennant. That would certainly have pleased the frequent precedent-buster of Flatbush. But no, he had to sit back and puff through a long season fraught with pronunciamentos, declarations and assertions until Sept. 27. The Judge knows his law and the law says a pennant can be clinched but not grabbed prior to that date this year.

Rickey, who's paid to engineer pennant drives for the Cardinals, engineered the Cards onto the main express track when he sold Mize. Despite Rickey's maneuver, the Cards are breathing their hot breaths close upon the necks of the Bums today. They might catch 'em, but I doubt it. With Mize in there, it would be a different story.

Mize's power this year would more than have made up for the edge the Brooklyns hold now. Rickey figured Mize was past his peak and unloaded him. He thought he had a comer in Ray Sanders from Columbus, but Ray didn't develop.

New Tarzan Picture To Be At Palace for Three Days

Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan Starred in Story of Jungle Man's Visit to New York.

"Tarzan's New York Adventure," showing Sunday through Tuesday at the Palace theater, presents the uncivilized king of the jungles in the midst of the roaring activities of New York. The story deals with the abduction of "Little Tarzan" by a circus man, bent on using him as an attraction. Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan start in pursuit, trail them to New York, and amid battles with circus roustabouts and police, comical experiences of the jungle man with clothes and customs of civilization, a riot in a night club, and Weissmuller's dive from the Brooklyn bridge, they finally regain the boy and, with the aid of a friendly aviator, reach their home in the wilderness again. Johnny Sheffield and Virginia Grey are also featured in the film.

Wednesday Film

Playing Wednesday is "I Live on Danger," starring Chester Morris and Jean Parker. Morris is a radio special events reporter, the fellow who's Johnny-on-the-spot wherever big news breaks.

To start things off right, the picture has a killing within its first two minutes of action and Morris is pitched right into the middle of the excitement. How he solves the crime, catches the murderer, saves an innocent man from the electric chair with a coast-to-coast broadcast confession and then gets himself a girl—is the story of "I Live on Danger." The cast also includes Roger Pryor, Dick Purcell and Douglass Fowley.

MacDonald-Eddy Film

"I Married An Angel," serving as the latest costarring vehicle for Jeannette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, will show Thursday and Friday. It is a fantasy set to music. Eddy plays a wealthy playboy who dreams he marries an angel, the latter being Miss MacDonald, who in his waking hours is a timid country girl employed at his bank.

The angelic bride turns out to be anything but angelic. She won't about his business and his associates. She gets him into one complication after the other, then forsakes him for another playboy. Finally he wakes from his weird dream to find love with the angel's human counterpart. Comedy details are in the hands of Reginald Owen and Edward Everett Horton, and Mona Maris is Miss MacDonald's love rival. Binnie Barnes, Douglass Dumbrille, Janis Carter, Inez Cooper, Leonid Kinskey and Anne Jeffreys complete the cast.

Ohio Shows Grable Film

"Footlight Serenade" Also Features John Payne and Victor Mature.

Betty Grable, John Payne and Victor Mature are starred in the musical, "Footlight Serenade," now playing at the Ohio theater through Thursday. The story tells of a fighter who turns actor. Victor Mature, who portrays the boxer, and John Payne are both "that way" about Betty Grable. Robin and Rainger provided the music to which Miss Grable and the rest of the cast dance. Vic plays the role of a boxing champ who is so handsome that he's starred in a Broadway show just to attract the feminine patronage. James Gleason and Phil Silvers handle the comedy end of "Footlight Serenade." Gleason appears as a worried theatrical producer, while Silvers is his crony and star comedian who is the cause of most of Jimmy's imagined blues. Also featured in the film are Jane Wyman and Cobina Wright Jr.

Starting Friday for a week's engagement is "The Pied Piper," the story of a group of child refugees who are shepherded from occupied France to Britain and safety by a gruff Englishman. Monley Wooley plays the part of the crusty old Britisher. Roddy McDowell is an English boy who, with his sister and four other children of assorted nationalities, is led to safety across Nazi-ridden France. Anne Baxter portrays the daughter of a French colonel, who helps the Englishman and his charges escape the hands of the Gestapo. "The Pied Piper" is the picturization of Nevil Shute's novel. The supporting cast includes Otto Preminger and J. Carrol Naish.

Lum 'n' Abner At Marion

A hillbilly romance that goes astray forms the theme of "The Bashful Bachelor," the Lum 'n' Abner picture which starts with the midnight show Saturday and runs through Monday at the Marion theater. Lum is in love and the object of his affections, Gertrude, is played by Zasu Pitts.

Showing with "The Bashful Bachelor" is "Timber," which pictures another route phase of war on the home front, the threat of sabotage of our forests. The film co-stars Leo Carrillo, Andy Devine and Dan Dailey Jr. with Marjorie Lord in the leading feminine role.

"The Vanishing Virginian," playing Tuesday and Wednesday, is the story of a great American and his family. The film features Frank Morgan, Kathryn Grayson, Spring Byington, Natalie Thompson, Douglass Newland and Mark Daniels. "Wagons Roll at Night," starring Humphrey Bogart completes the bill.

"Atlantic Convoy," a story of Uncle Sam's flying Marines and their valiant efforts to blast Axis subs out of the North Atlantic, will begin a three-day run Thursday. Starring in the picture are Virginia Field, Bruce Bennett and John Beal.

Also showing Thursday through Saturday is Tim Holt in "Come On, Danger." Holt plays the part of a youthful Texas ranger out to capture a lady cattle rustler, played by Frances Neal. Also featured in the film are Ray Whitley and Lee "Lasses" White.

Sen. Norris Wants Test of Ban on Poll Tax

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29—Opponents of legislation to wipe out the poll tax as a qualification for voting were challenged today by Senator Norris, Independent of Nebraska, to put the issue "squarely up to the United States supreme court."

The 80-year-old legislative veteran said he was "absolutely convinced" of the constitutionality of a bill to prohibit states from collecting poll taxes as a qualification to vote for national officials, but recognized " the sincerity of others holding an opposite view."

"I've always thought the tax unjust and unfair," Norris said. "I'd like to see congress pass legislation that will put the matter up to the courts."

He told an interviewer he would work with Senator Pepper, Democrat of Florida, to obtain passage at this session of Pepper's anti-poll tax measure, now pending before a judiciary subcommittee.

Big Orders for Wool Feature of Week's Market

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Aug. 29—The Commercial Bulletin said in the Boston wool market today:

"The outstanding event of the week in the wool market has been the request of the government for 7,200,000 yards of Oxford and Melton cloth and 6,000,000 all wool blankets, in which fabrics medium domestic wools are specified. This calls for three-eighths and quarter-blood wools which have hitherto been neglected in the army program and so in part make good the promise of the quartermaster general to find use for all of the domestic clip.

"Sales of medium bright and territory wools have been made with some freedom at prices well up to ceiling levels. There continues a ready demand for fine and half-blood wools but sales of these have fallen off as supplies are getting restricted."

The paper will publish these two Ohio quotations:

Domestic fleeces—Delaine unwashed 46-48; ½ blood combing 46-48; ¾ blood combing 48-50, ¼ blood combing 48-50.

BUYING HELPS BOLSTER LIST

Favored Stocks Get Some Nibbles, but Demand Is Not Great.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 29—Buyers continued to nibble at favored stocks in today's market but the acquisition appetite waned appreciably.

The list generally added fractional plus signs at the start. Dealings were slack throughout and early gains were eliminated in many cases in the final hour. Closing trends were narrowly irregular. Transfers dwindled to around 125,000 shares compared with 180,000 last Saturday.

Wall Street still viewed the war news from Russia, Europe, the Solomons and China as fairly bullish but the fact that the market in recent sessions had failed to respond with any real vigor to the improved outlook served to chill optimism to some extent. Tax relief prospects remained a bolstering influence although analysts were unwilling to make sizable bets on congressional results in this matter.

Rail shares turned shaky as some customers cashed in on the lengthy upward journey of this group. In arrears the greater part of the time were Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Railway and Chesapeake & Ohio.

Among stocks recording new tops for the year or longer were Standard Oil of California and Postal Telegraph preferred.

Motors were about unchanged. Losers at one time or another were U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet, American Telephone, International Harvester, Standard Oil (NJ), American Can, Kennecott, Phelps Dodge and Sperry.

YOUR HEALTH

Triumph Over Diphtheria

If anyone had told me 40 years ago that at the end of that time diphtheria would be wiped out in this country by an effort of medical science, I would have refused to believe a word of it. And if I had been further told that this was to be due to the willing cooperation of parents and children for individual vaccination by doctors, boards of health and school doctors, I would have been even more incredulous.

In looking back and thinking this over, I do not know whether to wonder at and admire more the scientific accomplishment or the fact that the public was persuaded to take advantage of it.

The scientific accomplishment is awe inspiring enough. To have taken a disease—one of the most fatal and treacherous of all human dangers, which has killed off the babies and children and youth of the world for thousands of years, for we have records of it since mankind first squatted on the banks of the Nile—and to perfect a method, itself perfectly harmless, by which the introduction of a few drops of fluid under the skin will render an infant protected from the disease for life—that indicates for me the highest form of accomplishment of the human mind.

But when I reflected back and remember all the cranks who were against "serum" and the anti-vaccinationists of 1902, and consider that by reasonable and gentle persuasion, state boards of health have convinced parents so that in some states 100 per cent of children entering school have had diphtheria prevention, I am not so sure but what that is the greater triumph.

People will swallow any kind of a witch's brew made in a dark back kitchen by an ignorant quack who has never tested it on a single case for this, that, or the other ailment, but will shy away from a product that has been the careful and patient and tested accomplishment of the most exact laboratories because it is a "serum."

I still get some letters from representatives of the dinosaurs protesting against my advocacy of diphtheria, smallpox and typhoid vaccination, but even in my short career in medical journalism they are getting fewer and farther between.

At any rate there is no question of the accomplishment. In some states the campaign has been so thoroughly carried out that the citizens hardly know what diphtheria is.

In my neighboring city of Kansas City, Kansas, in one of those enlightened states, there have been no deaths from diphtheria for three years. Think of that in a city of two hundred thousand population.

In Massachusetts, a state where there is much population crowding, with tenements and poverty, the actual rate of incidence of diphtheria had dropped in the 10 years between 1930 and 1940 from 101 cases per 100,000 population to 3.

But remember, diphtheria is not killed; it is only sleeping. Eternal vigilance — continued vaccination — is the price of peace.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

THERE was no mistaking the grim and feral determination in Noel's face and manner. I had been able to sway him when my father sent me to him, but this time he was adamant, and I was thankful that my father himself now had made it unnecessary for me to combat Noel's decision.

"But that's what I was just going to tell you," I said. "Mary never again will have to go out alone with Redfield."

He stared at me uncomprehendingly, in about the mental state of a man who has lashed out to strike a stone wall and found himself flailing a feather bed.

"What do you mean?" he stammered.

Instead of answering him directly I turned to Mary, at whom he had not looked since his first furious glare at her, and voiced a command intended to enable her to get hold of herself, for I knew she was almost at the breaking point.

Mary Sent Away

"Mary, dear," I said, "will you please go into my bedroom and stay there until I call you? Lie down and rest, even if you cannot sleep."

Noel started, said nothing but his startled face said eloquently that he preferred his wife within reach of his anger.

Mary, however, with a sigh of relief, scurried out of the room, flashing me a grateful glance as she went out. Then I turned back to Noel.

"I mean exactly what I said," I told him. "Did you hear what my father said to your wife when he read that paper which he took from Redfield's shoe?"

Noel Doesn't Undestand

He stared at me for an instant, uncomprehendingly, then drew his hand across his eyes as if brushing away cobwebs.

"I heard him say 'Good work'," he said, "but it didn't mean a thing to me. I haven't any idea what's going on, except that your father thinks Mary can get valuable information out of that swine."

"Then I would better tell you now, just what Mary has done," I told him. "She has rendered her country a most signal service."

Noel, an ugly sneer in his voice, interrupted me.

"If she were serving some other country your father probably would dub her anoher Mata Hari," he said. "I'm afraid I can't wax enthusiastic over my wife's role as a glamorous extractor of secrets."

Brought to His Senses

"If you were a small boy I should slap you roundly for that speech," I said angrily, and I was glad to see a remorseful, apologetic look in his eyes.

"I'm sorry," he said humbly. "I shouldn't have said that. But you dont know; you can't imagine —"

"Yes, I can," I interrupted sturdily. "I can and do understand, and I sympathize with what you are feeling. But I cannot permit you to be unjust to your wife, who has worked at her distasteful task without faltering or complaining, and who has just brought it to a triumphant conclusion.

"Now I want you to listen quietly while I tell you about it, and to reserve judgement until I have finished."
